

Pricing, Commission and Administration Fees

Global Markets Group Limited (“GMGL”) operates two levels of accounts, Standard and Pro Accounts. A significant difference between the two account levels is the pricing model which is explained in detail below.

Standard Account: The Standard Account offers an ‘all-in-spread’. There is no commission charged on these accounts. GMGL receives a wholesale spread aggregated from multiple liquidity providers – these providers can be found in the GMG Best Execution Policy (section 3.1 Execution Venues). GMGL then marks up this spread to earn our revenue on these accounts.

Pro Account: The Pro Account offers an institutional spread for FX transactions. There is an additional commission charged for FX transactions on these accounts, charged outside of the spread. The amount charged is based on three factors: volume traded per month, account deposit and base currency of account. A summary is highlighted below:
